Third episode of the sixth season of Bob's Burgers "The Haunting"Bob's Burgers episode Episode No. Next is Joshua 160; lives: "Gayle Makin'Bob Sled" List of episodes Max Greenfield (2013) "The Haunting" is © the third episode of the sixth season of s © sitcom series © American day Bob's Burgers and the 91st episode in general. It was written by Steven Davis and Kevin Yu, who won an Annie Award, and was directed by Jennifer Coyle. Guest star © Max Greenfield doing voices for boyband member Boo Boo. It first aired in the United States in October 18, 2015 on Fox Network. In this episode, the Belcher family goes to a haunted house on Halloween, where parents want to scare their children, especially Louise. At the family restaurant Bob and Linda Belcher tell their regular customer Teddy that they go to a haunted house with their children every year on Halloween. Louise, however, who would like to be really scared, does not anxiously wait for this because she finds boring and predictable haunted houses. Her parents explain that they've planned something to scare her this time. Louise asks her brothers Tina and Gene if they know anything about it, which they deny. Linda and Bob show the kids around the haunted house, but they can't scare them. Louise has the idea of scaring her parents, and children hide in a pile of leaves in the garden and jump out of it when their parents frantically come looking. The family decides to go home, but finds that there is not enough air in one of the car's tires. While Bob tries to dial a tow truck, they come to a quiet man in the street holding lawn mowers. When he doesn't answer their questions, they quickly shuffle back to the house. When the power goes out, they hear strange sounds. The basement, and go looking for the source. When a monstrous scream sends them back up, they are stopped at the front door by the man with the scissors trying to force their way in. Desperate, the family rushes up and locks itself in the bathroom, avoiding a room containing only a chair in which a doll with branches sticking out of its eyes sits. Moments later, they hear heavy footsteps going up the stairs, and when the street man tries to enter the bathroom, the family climbs up the window to © attempting to call for help, Bob releases his phone from the roof just a s three hooded figures appear on the lawn for a while, and a large circle of grass apparently catches fire around the house. Trapped without hope, a distraught Louise turns to s e e the strange man in the open window behind her, and screams in fear... Just like Gene takes a picture of her. Confused, Louise soon learns from her family that everything was a trick to scare her, even though Gene and Tina knew the plan. While children scared their parents in the garden, Teddy emptied the tire (and, to Bob's dismay, cut the car brake line). Mort was in the basement making strange sounds, caused by him accidentally throwing his back while trying to catch a big sledgehammer. The house belongs to Mort's mother, and her boyfriend is... © The man who scared Louise. Ecstatic, Louise thanks her family. After the Belchers return home, they watch the music video from "I Love U So Much (It's Scary)" by Boyz 4 Now's boyband from the epis o de of the same name. Reception Alasdair Wilkins of The A.V. Club gave this epis o de a "B" and wrote, "During the course of the episode, however, [Louise] changes, first to her more familiar role of hell and then to what she fundamentally is to. ©, that is © a small child, and in this case a frightened child. © also © a great episode for Louise to be brutally honest in her comments and provoking similar frankness back: See how He admits that, yes, being old is scary, or that the children jumping from a lot of leaves was much more effective than his and beautiful to the elaborate house haunted. These intercounters would be quite fun if they were only between two strangers, but it becomes appropriately hilarious due to our familiarity with Louise and Bob to personality, perspectives, and mannerisms, not to mention schaalvadoá €™' s Schaalvado if H. Jon Benjamimento. [1] Steven Davis and Kelvin Yu received an Annie premium in the" Outstanding Achievement. Writing In the Animated TV / Broadcast Production category for the script of this episode.
