Good job in this; I would agree that NWN characters creation is a discouraging process. Some examples may be able to admit, so as a complete list of sorcerer spells for those who want to play one. SOME GENERAL COMMENTS: - Fight with a two-handed weapon: this is the most easy way. Take the biggest weapon you find and start killing. Those chars need a force of force, because the (force modifier * 1.5) is adds to their damage when using a 2-hand weapon or has a 1 hand weapon in both hands. High force also means a high opportunity to hit. I add that such characters must choose a weapon that has a high probability of such an additional crit or that is an additional damage in a critical blow. For winter nights 2 The "Falk" and "Scythe" are great two-handed weapons options in this regard. In NWN1 there is no lamb, so the best is the great sword. - Fight with a weapon and shield you lose the damage and increase your opportunity not to be beaten. I think this is good for divine casters. There are a couple of cases that can be hostile. Low level characters tend to do well with this. The other case is Paladins that strongly confer in the feed of divine power, since the bonus damage that is the same for 1 hand and 2 hands. I am greatly enjoyed by my Motb work as a single Paladin/Blackguard; A high obscenomental ac and savings releases, and use the divine power (and after the divine power peak) for my output of dava. The arcane casters also have the lowest points of all classes. If you are a beginner and you want to use magic, divine magic is usually the most fashionable option. As an additional point, the Casters Arcane also have the slightest opportunity to hit in the fight of all classes. Bards and warwatchers can melt into light armor (and with medium armor with a special), and their spells have their own unique taste. Magic users can also be divided into two other groups. Very vulnerable if you choose these options. It is not yet the end of the world. Illusion: Losing enchantment is not a bad choice. You lose some pleasant fans and debuffs, but the magician is literally oozing with benefits and debuffs, so it should be able to find replacements. It is possible that if it points to the kind of prestige of the "red magician", the specialization of illusion is the only option if you want to retain full access to the spells of illusion. Any other option will cover the illusion (originally or after joining the prestige class). NIGROMANCIA: Lose divination from afar the best option; There is only one really good divination spell in the whole game: "Premonition". Of course, that is your best high-level defensive spell, so this is a fairly heavy compensation for a peak. Low-level characters will not even feel this. Sorcerer some essential spells: 1 - fat, kidgical missile, invoked monster I (also known as the "improvised mines suit") 2 - cloud of confusion, invisibility, mirror image 3 - hurry, dissipate magic, act The cloud 4 - evard's black tentistry, stoneskin, improved invisibility 5 - mind bleank 6 - Swarm of missile missile Less a version of the "Mantle of spells" and the "rape of the spell", although the level to which you get it depends on you. Da± o spells are, with few exceptions, quite overvalued. They are important in Neverwinter Nights 1, where it will spend a lot of time alone or with a single henchman, so it is important to give it yourself. In NWN2 it will spend most of your time as a bigger party, so it is more a ostil to disable the enemies that give them. I am not saying that I ignore them completely, just saying that they are not high Description: (Clase of prestige) A blackguard personifies evil.
